...probably has a personality syndrome or other autistic spectrum disorder which would help to explain some of his ham-handed statements, Stallman also opposes government interference in personal freedoms, especially when it comes to computing. Because of that, he was arguing against government efforts to violate 4th Amendment rights on the grounds that they were only trying to protect children from pedophiles. If you look at his postings, you will see that his work was focused on human rights, social justice, protecting people from all sorts of coercion by governments and corporations, and especially on enhancing our freedoms in the computing domain.

Here are some messages from Stallman (follow the links to see what articles he had linked to):

<https://stallman.org/archives/2019-jul-oct.html...>

26 July 2019 (Jeffrey Epstein rape career)

Jeffrey Epstein intimidated the whole US press into silence about his rape career, starting in 2003.

=====

<https://stallman.org/archives/2019-jul-oct.html...>

11 August 2019 (Jeffrey Epstein committed suicide)

Jeffrey Epstein appears to have committed suicide in his cell. Or perhaps he was murdered — it is not unusual for prisoners to murder prisoners accused of sexual crimes.

Epstein was accused of trafficking: bringing people long distances on false pretenses and then pressured them into sex or prostitution. He also reportedly raped some of those people. I believe those accusations, and I think he deserved to be imprisoned.

Some of his victims were legally adult. Some were teenage minors. I don't think that makes any moral difference. I don't think rape is less wrong if the victim is over 16.

=====

<https://stallman.org/archives/2019-jul-oct.html...>

25 August 2019 (New will made by Epstein before suicide)

Epstein made a new will two days before his suicide. It seems designed to prevent his victims from getting damages from him.

=====

<https://stallman.org/archives/2019-jul-oct.html...>

13 September 2019 (Epstein donations)

Media Lab Director Joi Ito confessed that he had secretly accepted donations from Epstein after MIT had decided not to do so.

He also accepted funds for some personal activities of his own.

That dishonesty, and conflict of interest, make his resignation obligatory.

But I fear for the effect on the Media Lab. Under Negro ponte, the lab was notoriously stingy and proprietary. Ito corrected that. I fear that the next director will undo some of Ito's changes.

=====

<https://stallman.org/archives/2019-jul-oct.html...>

14 September 2019 (Statements about Epstein)

I want to respond to the misleading media coverage of messages I posted about Marvin Minsky's association with Jeffrey Epstein. The coverage totally mischaracterised my statements.

Headlines say that I defended Epstein. Nothing could be further from the truth. I've called him a "serial rapist", and said he deserved to be imprisoned. But many people now believe I defended him — and other inaccurate claims — and feel a real hurt because of what they believe I said.

I'm sorry for that hurt. I wish I could have prevented the misunderstanding.

14 September 2019 (Sex between an adult and a child is wrong)

Many years ago I posted that I could not see anything wrong about sex between an adult and a child, if the child accepted it.

Through personal conversations in recent years, I've learned to understand how sex with a child can harm per psychologically. This changed my mind about the matter: I think adults should not do that. I am grateful for the conversations that enabled me to understand why.

Mike Miller I was just reading the "Unwanted Attention" section of this excellent but disturbing report from MIT women, 1983. It's in the Chapter 2 PDF. But there is so much more in the report. Thanks to Selam Zhou Jie Gano for digging this up.

Former fundraising staffer here, just want to fact check one of the claims:
"However, MIT had internally "disqualified" Epstein as a donor. That meant MIT officially would not take Epstein's money."

"Disqualified" only means that the staff decides it is not worth their time to solicit a gift from someone -- it doesn't bar the donor from making a gift or bar MIT from accepting it. There are a billion reasons MIT shouldn't have accepted the money, but donor disqualification i... Mehr anzeigen

MIT Students Against War Thanks for the clarification! Farrow's New Yorker article had at first made it seem as if MIT had some sort of policy against taking money from Epstein, and that fundraising administrators sought to get around that. But it is now looking more and more like MIT's "policy", from the very top, was that taking Epstein's money was ok but that it needed to be hidden from the public so that MIT wouldn't get bad press.

"Reif, you can't hide! We demand that you resign!" hundreds of protesters chanted at an "MIT Rally Against Jeffrey Epstein" and "They Knew: Speak-out against MIT-Epstein Scandal" outside Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT)'s Stratton Student Center this afternoon. "The administration, they've told us lie after lie after lie," said Husayn Karimi of MIT Students Against War, which organized the protest with No Dark Money at MIT.

I just learned today from an MIT colleague about your plans for a Speak-Out on Friday to redress the recently exposed acts of moral depravity and deception by some members of MIT's leadership. I'm forwarding you a letter and attachments that I sent to The Boston Globe on September 8 in an effort to inform and warn the public of the past unethical acts of the person who now controls what information will be forthcoming, MIT President Rafael Reif...
